COMPUTER CLINIC

by Steve Rollison

Support Reminder. We are now on our summer support schedule – meeting from 1:00 to 3:00 o'clock the first Wednesday of each month. Additionally, we are still available for home visits to address any computer, tablet or cell phone problems. Just give us a call!

Don't Ditch that Dead Desktop

This month Susan and I set out four dead desktop computers for the trash collectors. Afterwards the thought came to me, "What a waste. There's got to be at least one good use for NWF ("not worth fixing") PCs. Here are several ideas I quickly brainstormed.

- Unique Mailbox I wish I'd have thought of this before buying a new mailbox just last month! I could've ripped the guts out of one of the NWF PCs, mounted the faceplate on a spring-loaded hinge, stenciled our street number on the side in bright pastel "Florida" colors, and set it on top of a regular mailbox post cemented into the ground.

- Computer Anxiety Eradicator Do you still have some trepidation about "breaking" your computer by pressing the wrong key? Maybe if you saw just how uncomplicated a computer really is you'd be a little more at ease. Grab a set of screwdrivers. Grab a computer-savvy friend. And start disassembling your NWF machine. Have your friend explain each part as you remove it. "That's the power supply. It converts the electricity from the wall outlet into the form of electricity required by the computer." "That's the hard drive. It stores all your photos, songs, videos and computer programs." Guess what – you don't need to worry about putting everything back together! Just dump all the pieces parts into a cardboard box and set it out with your trash. (Maybe we could do this as a "class" one day at the Computer Clinic. Would you be interested?)

- High Tech Desk Clock Take the hard disk drive from your dismantled computer, remove all the screws holding it together and carefully pry off the cover. Mount a battery operated clock mechanism you can buy at a hardware or hobby store and voila – you now have an intensely cool desk clock!

- Aerobic Exercise Stepper You can spend from $28 to $115 online for a heavy duty plastic platform to step-up-step-down for aerobic exercise. But have you ever noticed how sturdy computer cases are? Flop your NWF PC on its side, slip a rubber, skid-proof mat underneath it, and start steppin' to the oldies while saving yourself a few bucks or more.

- Burglar Distractor Leave your dead PC sitting out in plain sight and a drugged-out burglar might just grab it and run instead of taking time to rummage through your house looking for cash or jewelry. Better yet, pop off the case, fill it with concrete, and pop the case back on. Maybe the clueless thief will throw his back out hauling away your "valuable" computer!
