

The Bay Laker

EDITOR: JANICE VAN DYKE

Issue 65

FROM THE MANAGER

Leslee Jones

This was printed in my article in the September 2013 newsletter. I am including it again as there have been questions of how residents will be notified in an emergency such as storm evacuations. As mandatory evacuations are ordered by the county the notification would come from them. Sarasota County uses a calling system that is called CodeRED. Submit your information to the county at www.scgov.net or call 941-861-5000.

A reminder for those of you that walk your dogs in our community. All pets or service animals must be on a leash. Please be careful to walk on the side of the roads. There have been instances of people walking with their animals towards the middle of the street. This is an accident waiting to happen! Be safe and share the road with bicycles and cars.

Our "Home of the Month" award for September went to 175 Oleander Street. They have received their $50 gift card! Make sure that you take a ride by this home. Good luck to next month's winner!

STAYING CURRENT WITH FORUMS AND BLOGS

The Computer Clinic by Steve Rollison

The Internet is often referred to as “the information superhighway.” The word “information” is an incredibly broad term, encompassing such topics as international, national and local news; “how to” instructions on everything from growing vegetables to building your own single-passenger airplane; entertainment in the form of movies, books, jokes and music; and anything else that you might have even the slightest interest in.

The Internet has many different ways to structure and share information. Two of the most common and most useful approaches are “forums” and “blogs.” Nearly every forum and blog is created to focus on some single topic. That topic could be as broad as “religions of the world” or as narrow as “maintaining a 2010 to 2014 Toyota RAV 4 sport utility vehicle.”

A “forum” is a virtual gathering place on the Internet for members of the forum to discuss the topic. Your contributions to the discussion may include tips, opinions, insights, questions or requests for help. There is no requirement that you actively participate in a forum you join. In fact, some people choose to just “lurk”—i.e. to just hang out, read others' posts, and never contribute to the conversations.

Many people consider Facebook groups, such as the Bay Lake Estates Friends group, to be forums. I wouldn't argue that point one way or the other, but it is worth noting that many forums use special software on their websites

Looping Programs

Quite a few years back at Venice Isle's clubhouse, looping equipment was installed. We have worked with this looping equipment company over the years to provide education for the hearing aid wearers. It was during this event that I bumped into my first awareness of under-programmed t-coil settings. (T-coil is the program setting to receive the looping transmission.)

A couple came up to me and mentioned that they weren't hearing much different whether they put on the t-coil setting or put it on the first program of their hearing aids. They wondered what the purpose of the looping equipment was if there wasn't much difference.

You should hear whatever is being broadcasted much cleaner, crisper and without distortion. There should be a noticeable difference when hearing the broadcast sounds without t-coil to hearing with t-coil.

I asked if they had the t-coil programmed. They weren't sure. I suggested they come into my office to have the t-coil program reviewed. They came in and sure enough their t-coil was active and under programmed. This is a problem I run into too often. While many aids have the technology to connect to t-coil, many are not correctly programmed to give the listener clarity.

I was able to help this couple by using the looping equipment in my office to adjust his program settings which enabled him to hear the crisper sounds that are provided through the looping equipment both at his clubhouse and when he went to the Venice Theatre.

If you want to know if your hearing aids can connect to t-coil or feel like you're not getting clarity from the program, I invite you to stop by my office for a checkup.

that enable “threads.” A thread is an ongoing conversation about an initial post that someone submitted to start a new thread. For example, someone could start a thread with a post saying “Anyone know where I can get a GOOD pizza in Venice?” Anything you post on that thread must have to do with Venice pizza, but if you wanted to make a comment about a restaurant that serves good Chinese food you could start a new thread saying “Craving some good General Tso’s Chicken? Try Ping’s restaurant.”

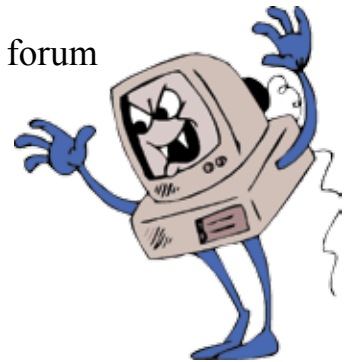

So how do you find forums to check out? I would suggest that you not do a Google search for “forums.” When I did that Google returned over 1 billion results—yes, that’s “billion” with a “B!”

Instead, think about all the activities, hobbies and issues you are involved with. Think about those you are so passionate about that you could maybe see yourself joining in a club with like-minded people.

I did a Google search for weight loss forums. (Guess where that idea came from!) That search returned just under 6 million results—way too many to investigate, obviously. So I narrowed it down and searched for weight loss forums for men, which reduced my results down to less than 2 million. Finally, I searched for “weight loss forum for men.” (The quotation marks tell Google “return results that have this exact phrase in them.”) That returned only 31 results, which is a manageable number.

A blog is similar to a forum but different—and we’ll cover blogs in next month’s Bay Laker.
